

Job Title: Researcher

(Senior Research Analyst)

QUALIFICATIONS: Analysts at the Senior Research Analyst level must have a four-year college degree and at least five years of technical experience. This experience must include a meaningful level of project management. A Master's or a Doctorate is highly recommended. The Senior Research Analyst will receive regular training in new information technology tools as they emerge

GENERAL DESCRIPTION: A Senior Research Analyst is experienced in developing and leading projects, in maintaining working relationships with clients, in assuming responsibility for the technical effort and growth of others, and in developing creative, innovative solutions to problems through the application of advanced theory, concepts and practices.